

The gold standard for new product evaluation

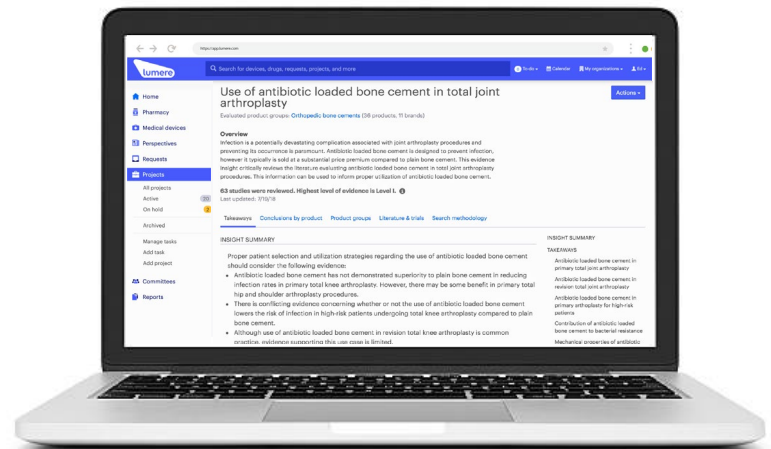

Lumere's web-based Product Introduction Management enables a best-in-class product review that engages physicians, standardizes processes and ensures that product approvals are limited to only those products that have demonstrated improved clinical value.

Bolster your clinical expertise

- Access comprehensive evidence reviews that address efficacy, safety and appropriate utilization, along with the underlying research articles, indexed by level of evidence and manufacturer sponsorship.
- Cross-reference over 30,000 devices based on functional similarity. Compare products based on their specs, costs, level of differentiation, safety profiles and clinical outcomes.
- Analyze medical devices from both a cost and clinical perspective to find common ground and build trust with physicians.

Manage effective new product reviews

- Automate your process and ensure that your committees are organized and armed with the key information to make evidence-based decisions.
- Deliver relevant research to physicians via email, collect feedback through online voting and proactively keep them informed of the status of their requests.
- Organize the right mix of committee members, experts and evidence to assess the organizational impact of your decisions.

"By providing objective, up-to-date, peer-reviewed literature, Lumere enables meaningful conversations and elevates the discussion from being about just devices to being about delivering the best patient care."
